JJC's bikini break!

Ibiza gets hotter as Jess jets in!

"5.30am, not a German in sight. Result!"

WE LIKE a girl who's a bit crafty. Like Jessica-Jane Clement, who looks for all the world like she crocheted her own pink bikini for a trip to Ibiza – have a look at the next spread to see what we mean! Maybe she also whipped up some sun cream using local artisan ingredients, then got smashed on bootleg hooch she cooked up in a home-made distillery? Or, most likely, ordered a fancy cocktail on room service. Silly Nuts. ▶

She had a particularly acute fear of heights

BEACH BUNNY!

Hi Jessica! What's new with you?
Hello! Well, I'm currently shooting a new show for the telly, and I've just wrapped on a horror film called Devil's Tower. It's a dark comedy with lots of gore and sex. Ha-ha!

Amazing! We like your holiday snaps. Did you get up to any shenanigans abroad?
Nowadays, the naughtiest thing I do is getting in the pool without showering first. Ha-ha! I've also been known to get up at 6am and throw my towel down on the sun lounger to get there first. Hardcore!

Do you ever go topless when you're on your jollies?
I will go topless as long as I'm not the only one! There's nothing more embarrassing than being told to put your boobies away by a waiter. I was always being told to cover up in Dubai, but I think they can throw you in jail over there so I just did what I was told.

What's your idea of ultimate holiday hell?
I've already experienced it! I once went on a girlie holiday, but as soon as I landed and turned my phone on, I got a message saying I had an audition the next day and had to fly back. I spent the entire first day on the internet trying to find a return flight, and when I finally booked it, I got a call to say it had been postponed. Aghhhh!

What's been the most awesome thing about your summer?
I'm not a fan of summer. I'm much more of a winter girl. It's such a sexy season and you get to wear big woolly jumpers and snuggle up to keep warm. I'm excited about Christmas!

Finally, you've experimented with ginger hair recently. Are you turning into a racy redhead?
Yes! I really like it but if I don't style it properly, I can look a bit like Sideshow Bob!

On the Paralympics!

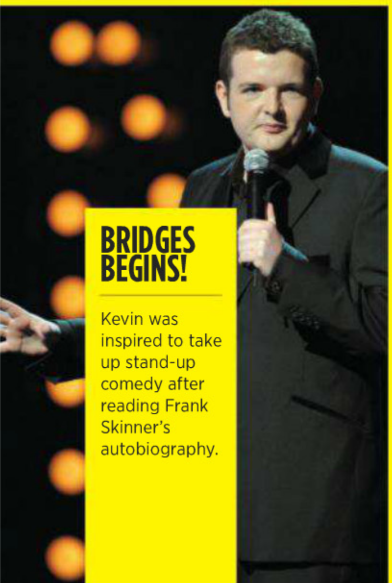
"I wonder where the prefix 'para' comes from? I associate "para" with paranoia. I'd love to see the Olympics for paranoid schizophrenics: 2,000m because they thought the cops were chasing them."

On Danny Dyer!

"You know when you're flicking through the channels and you get to the low end of the entertainment section, just before the high end of the lifestyle section? That's where Danny Dyer hangs about. Danny Dyer's Top Ten Deadliest Bellends or something."

On lads' holidays!

"There's only four acceptable nicknames on a lad's holiday: Shagger, Rambo, Craigy and Ginger. They're the guys on the flight, hitting the call bell going, 'Excuse me, can you give this CD to the pilot? Tell him track nine.'"



BRIDGES BEGINS!

Kevin was inspired to take up stand-up comedy after reading Frank Skinner's autobiography.

On Will.I.Am!

"He's that fking cool that we let him put full stops in his first name."

On Fergie!

"Since when was Fergie the name of a female R&B singer? Fergie is your cousin's pal you see at a house party at five in the morning, wearing a dress and grinding his teeth."

On dinner parties!

"You know that question: you're having a dinner party and you can only invite four people alive or dead? I'd have Nelson Mandela, Jesus, Brad Pitt and Stacey Solomon. I'd be like, 'Jesus, have you met Stacey before?' and 'Jesus, do we say grace or do you just text your old man?'"

On iPhones!

"It's a novelty to just get a phone call, I'm so used to playing with it. I've been on the phone and started to panic. 'Where's my fking phone? I'll phone you back, mate. I've lost my phone.' You phone back. 'You'll never guess what I've just done.'"

On changing networks!

"They make you feel like a footballer. 'Vodafone offered me 2,000 minutes, but the move isn't solely motivated by them. I've spent some of the best years of my life at O2. I've sat my family down and we've talked it through. I'm delighted to take on a new challenge."

On Call Of Duty!

"COD. I'll just explain that to the older generation in case you get invited over for a game of COD and you show up with the wrong fking stuff. Walk in and start fking slapping someone in the face with a dead fish. 'Dad, what the fk are you doing?' 'COD, son. Do you want to play Smoked Haddock? Come on, you wee b*stard, this game stinks!'"

On stupidity!

"Ever say something stupid and your brain gives you a w*nker sign? Somebody came up to me and went, 'Are you famous?' I said, 'Are you?' I don't know why I thought that would be funny."

On getting a haircut!

"I got my hair cut at Toni & Guy. I was fking raging when I saw the price. As soon as the guy offers you a drink, you sh*te yourself. 'I'll take five teas. Maybe I'll go and get the van.'"

On comedy!

"Comedy can be fking tough when you're not being funny. The same way being a priest can be a tough job when you've got Tourette's."

On leaving home!

"I recently moved out from my mum and dad's. I moved into to the nice bit of Glasgow. I found that street. It's just me and the bloke who owns Glasgow. You can tell by the cars parked there. 'Wow, this car has got a valid tax disc. Get a wee picture of me and the car.' I was straight on the phone to my dad."

On Scottish politics!

"You know they're going to show Braveheart the night before the independence referendum. They should show Trainspotting – balance it out a bit."

On living by himself!

"You learn a lot of life's big lessons when you live on your own, like Lurpak Spreadable is far from spreadable. I was making myself a crisp sandwich. I'd decided how many crisps I was going to put in the sandwich and how many I was going to keep in the packet as a wee side dish. I reached for my butter knife and the Lurpak, and within seconds it turns nasty. Bits of your worktop start to appear through the bread. Hovis thick crust, too, none of your wholemeal sh*t."

On going on holiday!

"In Scotland you don't go on holiday. You fk off. Anything remotely positive we'll suck the spirit from it."

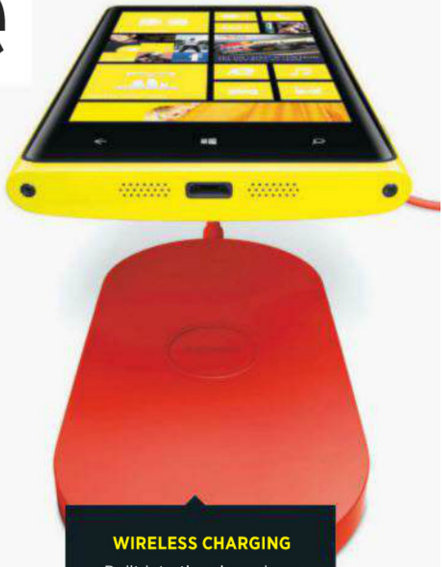
Awesome iPhone rival!

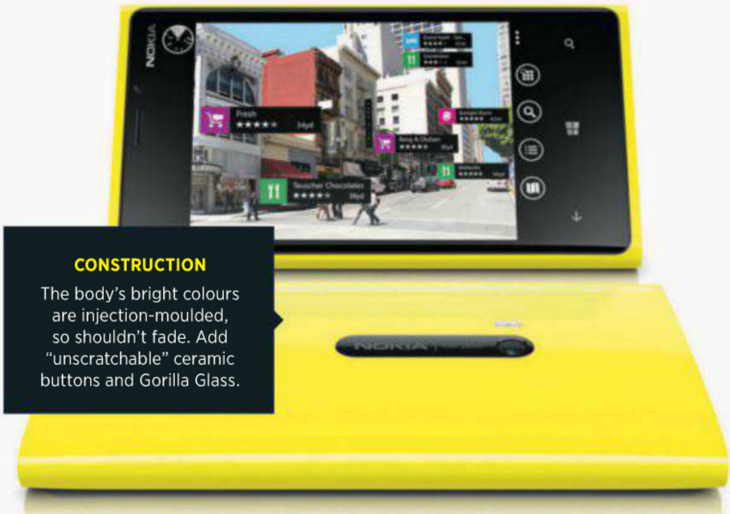
Nokia are back with a beauty!

NOKIA HAVE kicked off "phone season" by parading their latest sliver of tech: the Lumia 920. It packs Microsoft's revolutionary Windows 8 operating system – every bit as cool as the iPhone's brain. How will Apple respond? We'll find out next week – that's when they launch the iPhone5.



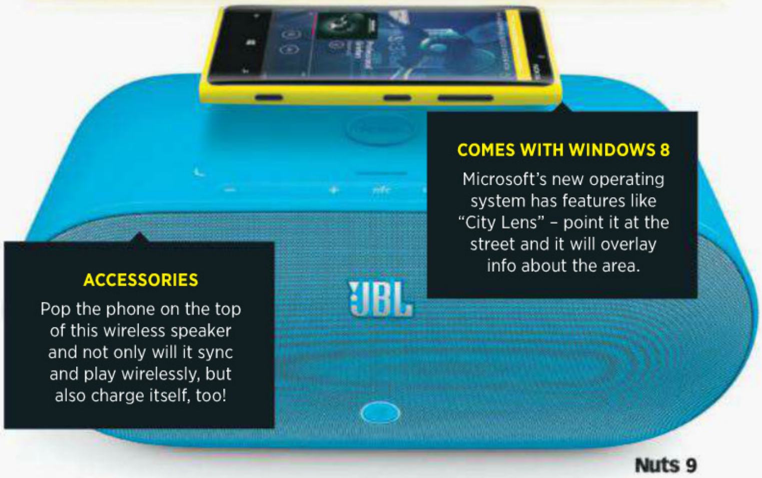
WIRELESS CHARGING

Built into the phone is an induction charging system. Get a charging plate, bung your phone on top and it charges itself. Simple.



CONSTRUCTION

The body's bright colours are injection-moulded, so shouldn't fade. Add "unscratchable" ceramic buttons and Gorilla Glass.



COMES WITH WINDOWS 8

Microsoft's new operating system has features like "City Lens" – point it at the street and it will overlay info about the area.

ACCESSORIES

Pop the phone on the top of this wireless speaker and not only will it sync and play wirelessly, but also charge itself, too!

Metal Gear Solid: Ground Zeroes first look!

And it's too good for current consoles!

➔ IT'S NOT often our jaded jaws drop to the floor over a games demo, but this is something special. Legendary games developer Hideo Kojima showed the latest Metal Gear Solid game, Ground Zeroes at last week's PAX game expo in Seattle. And it's a bit special.

In fact, it's so special, it won't even hit this generation of games console, there's no way they'd be powerful enough to do this. When's it out? Not a Scooby. On what format? Whatever Microsoft and Sony release next. See the vid at nuts.co.uk/games

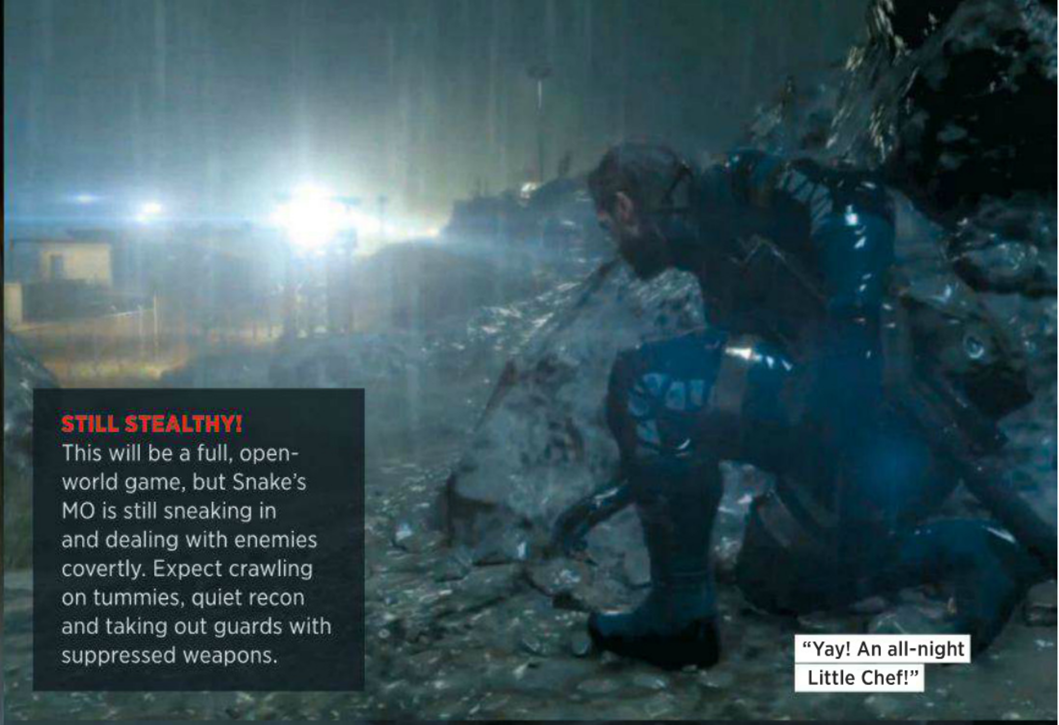
WORDS: RORY BUCKERIDGE

With the make-up off, Moss was starting to look her age

NEW BADDIE!
Featuring heavily is a burned man who will almost certainly be one of the new bad guys. This could be Hot Coldman, the villain from PSP game Peace Walker. How he got burned is anyone's guess.

VERSION 1.02

NEW GADGETS!
To help infiltrate a military compound, Snake uses this hologram map, showing his position and his targets, confirming that the game will be set in the near future.



STILL STEALTHY!

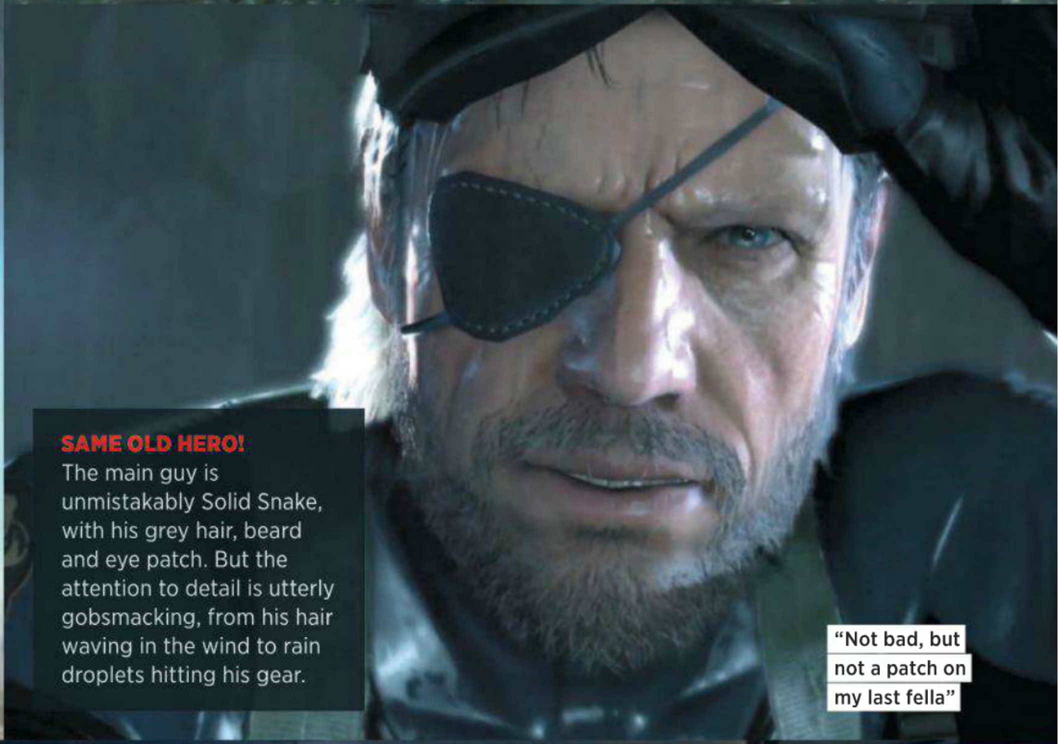
This will be a full, open-world game, but Snake's MO is still sneaking in and dealing with enemies covertly. Expect crawling on tummies, quiet recon and taking out guards with suppressed weapons.

"Yay! An all-night Little Chef!"

Peeping Tom took his role seriously

NEW GRAPHICS!

The game was running on the all-new "Fox Engine", with graphics we can confidently say are the best we've ever seen in a video game. Great! But it does mean we won't see it on a PS3 or Xbox 360.

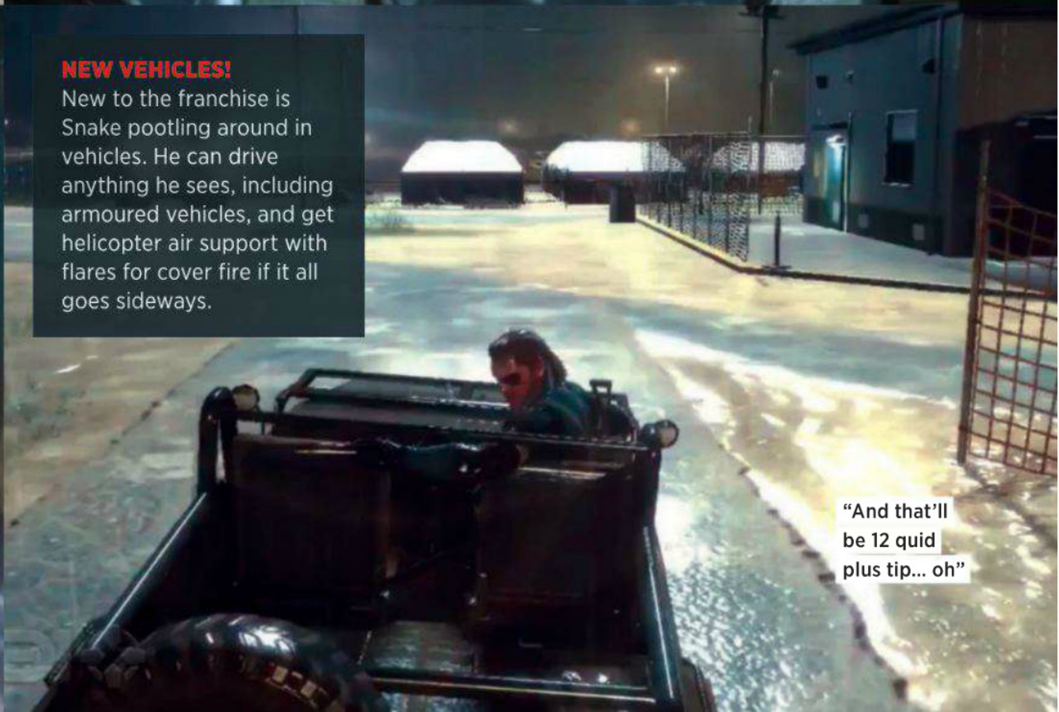


SAME OLD HERO!

The main guy is unmistakably Solid Snake, with his grey hair, beard and eye patch. But the attention to detail is utterly gobsmacking, from his hair waving in the wind to rain droplets hitting his gear.

"Not bad, but not a patch on my last fella"

"Don't think much of this new iPhone"



NEW VEHICLES!

New to the franchise is Snake pootling around in vehicles. He can drive anything he sees, including armoured vehicles, and get helicopter air support with flares for cover fire if it all goes sideways.

"And that'll be 12 quid plus tip... oh"

Street View's strange snaps

Weird and wonderful shots from the globe's glorious online picture show!

OVER THE past five years, Google has sent a small army of cars trundling around the globe, snapping merrily away for the Street View bit of Google Maps. They've driven over 5 million miles and taken 20 petabytes of imagery. So purely by the law of averages, they're going to shoot some weird stuff.

That was the thinking of artist Jon Rafman, who's scoured the site for the most bizarre and interesting shots he's curated on his site 9-eyes.com. Here are the highlights.

WORDS: RORY BUCKERIDGE

RED LIGHT DISTRICT!
Amsterdam's Red Light District was no stranger to Google's snappy vehicle. Probably not used so much in the tourist guides.

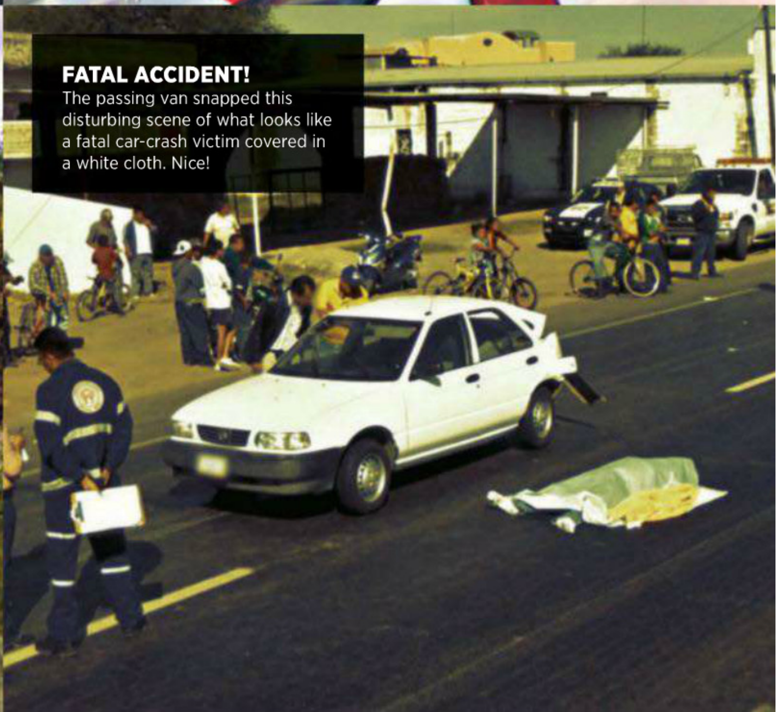
ESCAPED TIGER!
Nothing to see here. Just a tiger sauntering through an empty store front in California. On the way to Computer Club, probably.

Бобруйская улица

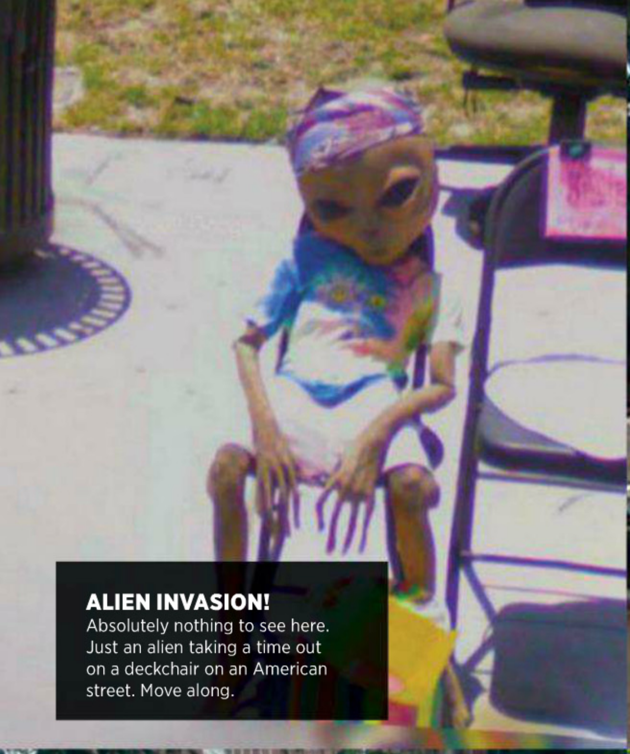
ARMS DEAL!
We're sure the business being enacted by these two Russian chaps is entirely above board and not even remotely illegal.

FRISKING!
Armed police detain and frisk three suspected gang members. Barca fans, obviously.

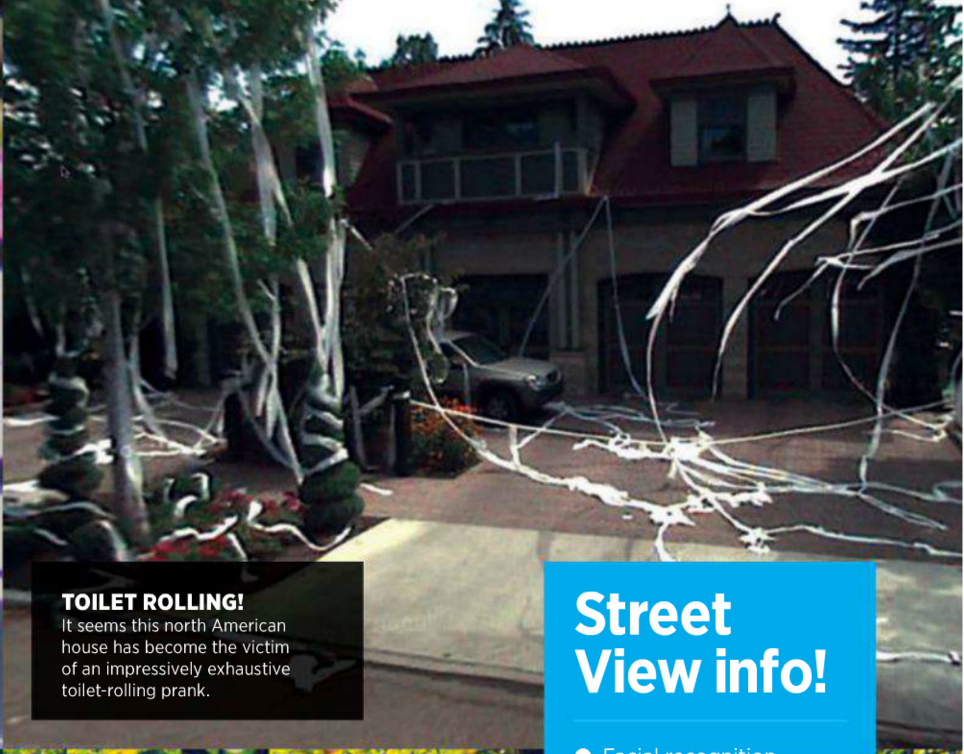
STAG DO!
The Street View car shared a country road with a happy stag in this shot. Race you!



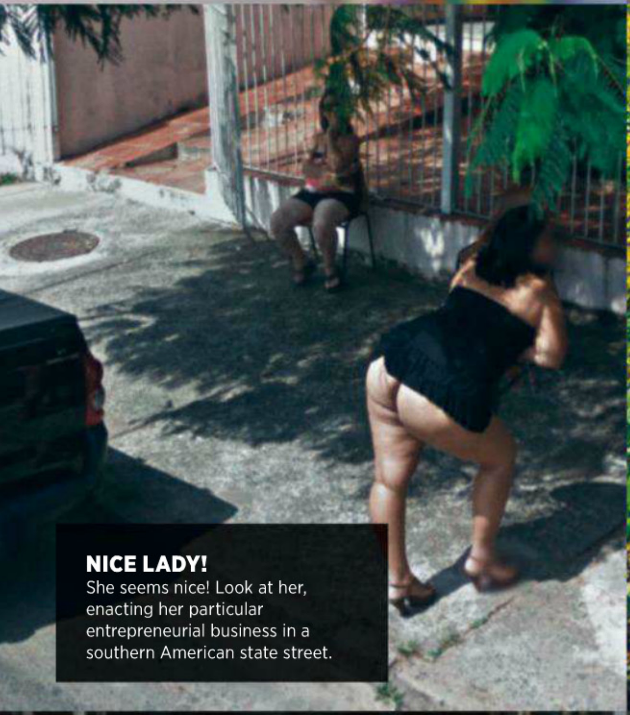
FATAL ACCIDENT!
The passing van snapped this disturbing scene of what looks like a fatal car-crash victim covered in a white cloth. Nice!



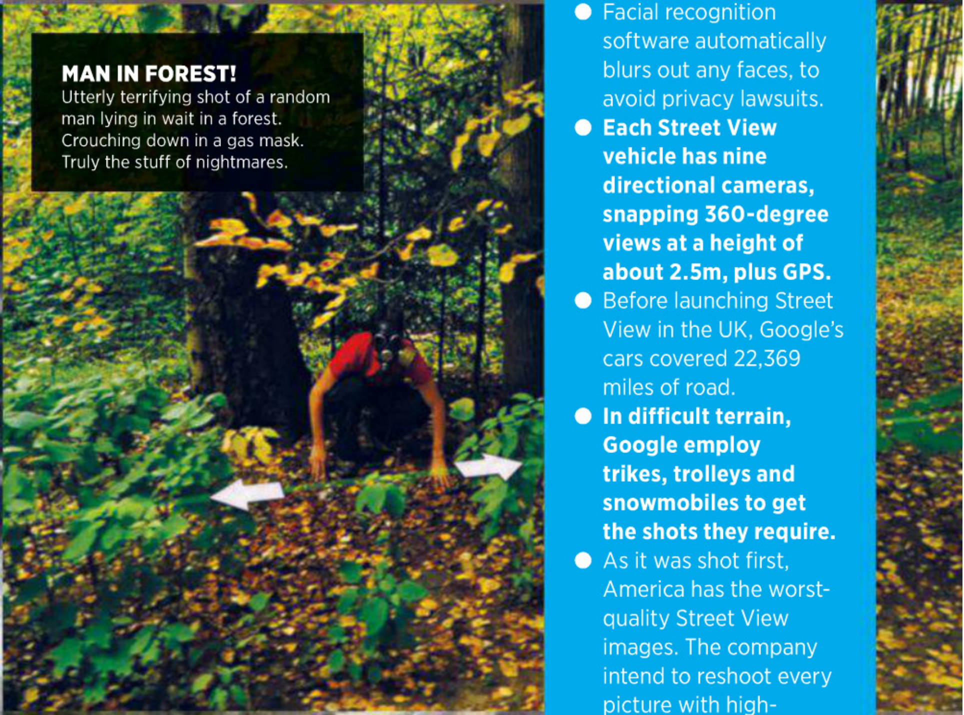
ALIEN INVASION!
Absolutely nothing to see here. Just an alien taking a time out on a deckchair on an American street. Move along.



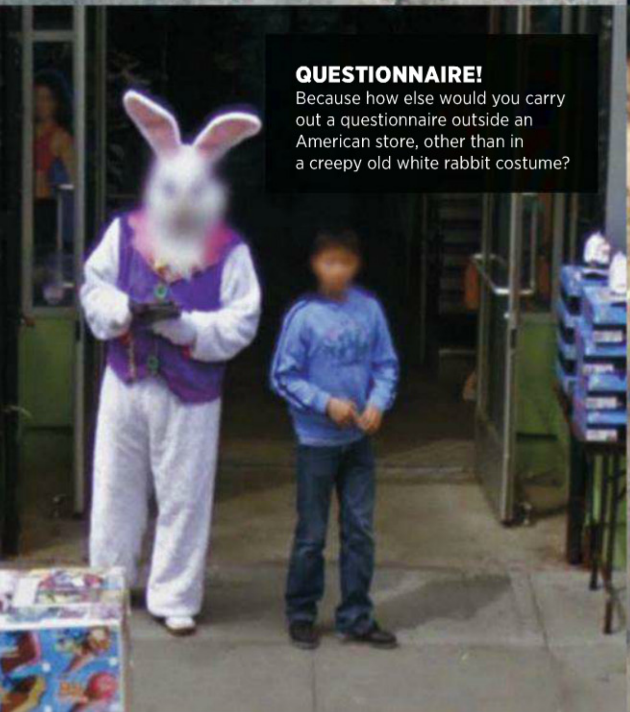
TOILET ROLLING!
It seems this north American house has become the victim of an impressively exhaustive toilet-rolling prank.



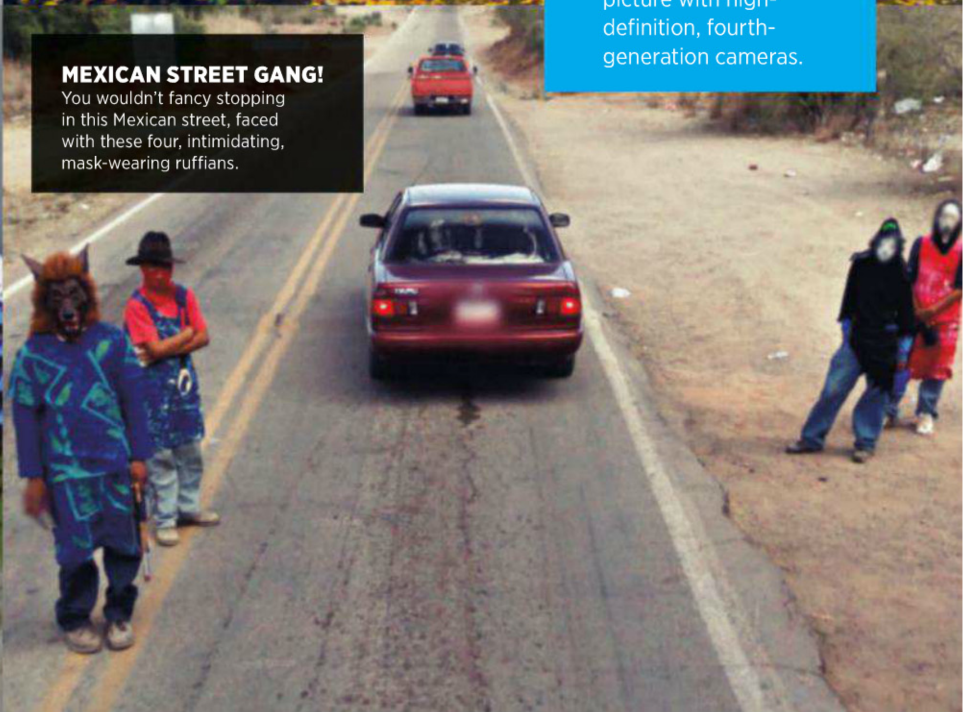
NICE LADY!
She seems nice! Look at her, enacting her particular entrepreneurial business in a southern American state street.



MAN IN FOREST!
Utterly terrifying shot of a random man lying in wait in a forest. Crouching down in a gas mask. Truly the stuff of nightmares.



QUESTIONNAIRE!
Because how else would you carry out a questionnaire outside an American store, other than in a creepy old white rabbit costume?



MEXICAN STREET GANG!
You wouldn't fancy stopping in this Mexican street, faced with these four, intimidating, mask-wearing ruffians.

Street View info!

- Facial recognition software automatically blurs out any faces, to avoid privacy lawsuits.
- Each Street View vehicle has nine directional cameras, snapping 360-degree views at a height of about 2.5m, plus GPS.
- Before launching Street View in the UK, Google's cars covered 22,369 miles of road.
- In difficult terrain, Google employ trikes, trolleys and snowmobiles to get the shots they require.
- As it was shot first, America has the worst-quality Street View images. The company intend to reshoot every picture with high-definition, fourth-generation cameras.

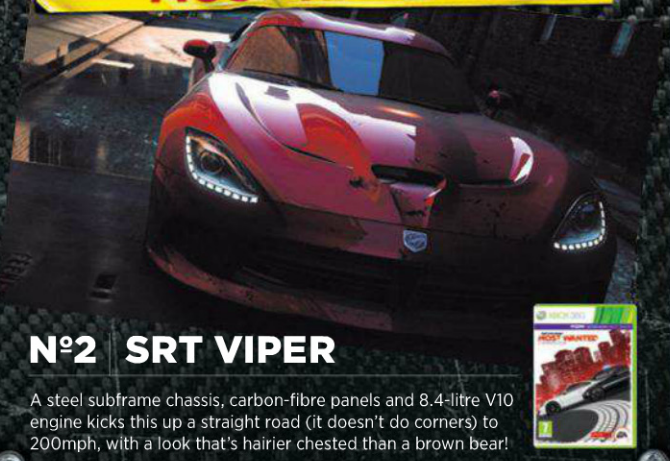
THE COOLEST CARS IN NEED FOR SPEED MOST WANTED



Nº2 SRT VIPER

A steel subframe chassis, carbon-fibre panels and 8.4-litre V10 engine kicks this up a straight road (it doesn’t do corners) to 200mph, with a look that’s hairier chested than a brown bear!

"This one-way system's a nightmare"

- The Bentley boys (and girls) themselves call the Continental GT Speed "a real world supercar, not a track special". Not that £151k cars are "real world" for most of us, but this is a devastatingly fast grand tourer you can tool around in every day, if you can afford it!
- As its name suggests, the Speed differs from its siblings because there are some extra ponies under the bonnet. The weapon of choice is still a W12 6.0-litre twin-turbo motor, but up by 61bhp and 37lb-ft on the previous Speed. So that's 616bhp on tap, with 590lb-ft of torque. Lamborghini's Aventador "only" packs 508lb-ft. A Nissan GT-R has just 465lb-ft, for goodness' sake!
- Besides the additional grunt, the Speed edition has been fiddled with in other areas. It receives an eight-speed automatic transmission, which not only improves its petrol penchant by 12 per cent but also tightens up the gear ratios, helping this hunk of metal reach 62mph in just 4.2 seconds. And remember, this thing weighs over 2.3 tonnes!
- So that you know it's a Speed, instead of dazzling chrome, the matrix grille and air intakes are finished in a dark-tint chrome. The 21in rims are unique Speed versions too.
- There are a lot of folk who buy Benters purely for their lounge-room innards. The choice of leather colour is off the scale, with 17 off-the shelf shades, and the chance to custom two-tone the upholstery. You can customise the carpet, too. And the seat belts. Even the style (and colour) of stitching is down to who signs the cheque. Watch the footballers form a disorderly queue for Crewe's latest creation.

THE BLUE MARLIN IS THE LENGTH OF 26 LONDON BUSES!

Monster cargo ship!

Got a submarine you need moving? Here's your man!

Blue Marlin facts

- It's 217m long, 42m wide and can carry 75,000 tonnes.
- As there are no cranes big enough to lift its cargo, it sinks up to 13m to float on whatever its carrying, then rises back up to transport the load.
- Its 17,000bhp engines deliver a top speed of 13 knots.
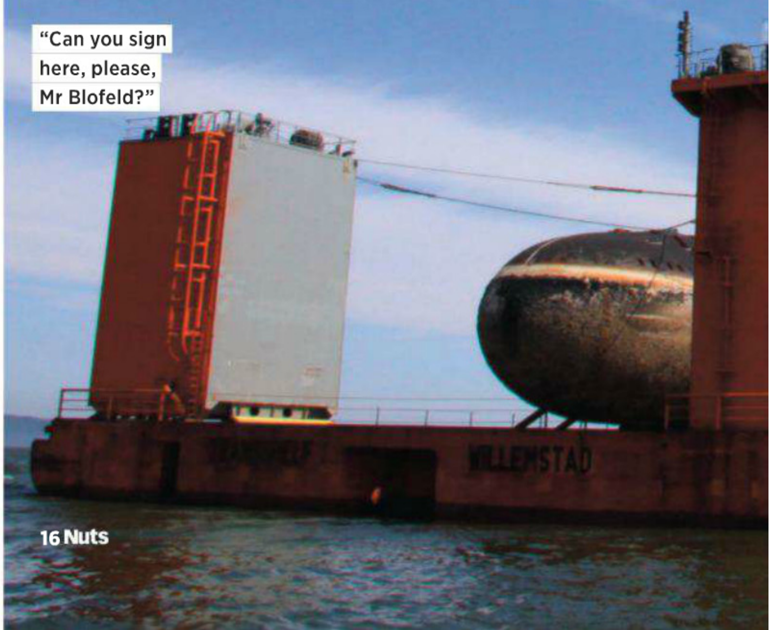
- To date, it's lifted oil rigs, nuclear-powered subs and an aircraft carrier (in two pieces).



"Can you sign here, please, Mr Blofeld?"

"And this is what we're taking on the Norfolk Broads?"

IF YOU'VE got submarines, aircraft carriers and other ships to move, ordinarily you'd have had to whistle. Now, you call in world's biggest cargo ship the Blue Marlin. Its biggest job so far? Hauling Simon Cowell's ego across the pond in 2010 for The X Factor USA!

A quick word with Karl Urban!

The Dredd star on video games, training and Star Trek 2!

Hi Karl! Did you only sign up to Dredd 3D once you realised it was going to be so violent?
Unlike a lot of the comic book films, Dredd doesn't gloss over the violence. It forces you take a hard look at the situation. It's beautiful and freaky!

Were you a fan of the 2000 AD comic as a kid?
I read the Judge Dredd comics as a teenager. I loved the dark humour and the fact that you didn't ever know whether Dredd was the villain or the hero. And Mega-City One was like a character in its own right.

Was it tough wearing the helmet the whole time?
There was no way we were going to have Dredd take his helmet off. Dredd's a faceless representative of the law and that's what gives him his enigma. I enjoyed wearing it along with the armour and carrying his voice-activated gun. And the bike! It was like living out a childhood fantasy. I didn't have the benefit of using my eyes. It was a huge challenge to see how much I could convey.

A bit like Bane in The Dark Knight Rises...
But how does Bane eat? Does he suck food through a straw? Must be a protein shake guy!

Would the world be a better place if the "Judges" existed?
The Judges in the timeline of the film are the last resort in a chaotic post-apocalyptic world. I hope things never get so bad that we need them.

You've said that you "trained like a motherfker" for this role – what did that involve?
I did 13 weeks working out with a personal trainer twice a day. I supplemented that with a structured eating regime to prepare for the shoot. It was a huge challenge to achieve Dredd's physical presence and not exactly enjoyable when you can't eat pizza!

What's it like being a legend to film nerds?
I wouldn't define myself as a legend. I've been lucky to be in a few films that people really enjoy and I'm really appreciative of that support.

We loved Doom [the film based on the game that Karl was in]. Are you still a gamer?
When I've got the time I really enjoy saddling up for Red Dead Redemption. And I've been meaning to check out LA Noir but I'm afraid it would suck me into the vortex of sitting on the couch for weeks on end!

Tell us about Star Trek 2.
The Enterprise set is even bigger this time. It felt like you were on the Enterprise for real!

● Dredd 3D is in cinemas now.

Sneaky shortcut to the boozer leads to severe skinning!

LANCASHIRE CHAP Gary Gemson ended up shaving off more than a few minutes from his journey to the pub – he lost the surface of his arm, too!

"I was darting between pubs on a night out and scaled a fence, but I was just about to push off the top when my hand slipped and I fell down," recalls the 26-year-old electrician. "I got up and my mate immediately said, 'What the hell have you done?' I looked down and I'd basically unzipped my arm. You could see everything!"

After a swift trip to A&E, doctors gave Gary so many stitches in his arm that he lost count of how many. "The doctor said if it had been the other side of my arm I would have bled to death," adds Gary, who tells the tale with only minor tendon damage.

The moral of the story, folks? Never be tempted to take shortcuts – even if it might get you to the pub quicker!

SEX ADVICE FROM A FIT LESBIAN!

Because she knows what she's doing and we don't!

DANNI ORSI, 100% REAL LESBIAN!

You might recognise Danni from hit TV show Candy Bar Girls on Channel 5

No nookie!

I'm in a long-distance relationship so only get to spend weekends with my other half. She still lives with her parents and doesn't want to do anything remotely sexual when we're at hers. I'm worried it's going to become an issue. I just want her to lose her inhibitions a bit!

COL Lincolnshire

Book a hotel room or pay for her travel to you. It's understandable that she has reservations about having sex in her parents' house. You need to make suitable arrangements!

My chicken won't choke!

Are there any alternative ways for a chap to pleasure himself? Every time I try to see to myself I get very bored to the point where I can't come, and I lose my stiffy. I'm always really horny – I just can't finish the job. Help!

ANON via email

Success lies in the mind. I expect your "apparatus" is in order but you're obviously not indulging your fantasies. Have you tried lubricants? And what would be your greatest sexual experience? Try it.

LETTER OF THE WEEK!

Sex hits the wrong notes!

I've been seeing a girl for about two weeks and we've only just started having regular sex. It's all good, but she makes the weirdest "squeaking" sex noises, which I find really off-putting. She sounds like a distressed kitten! How can I get her to realise what she's doing without offending her?

JED Coventry

You'll just have to get used to it. Any noise from a woman is quite normal. You need to remember that they're experiencing a sexual stimulation far beyond anything you will ever know. You should just learn to feel privileged that you're there to experience it.

Despite having a girlfriend, I had full sex with another woman when I was hammered. I thought I could put it down to being drunk, but I'm wracked with guilt and have an overwhelming urge to tell my missus. I'd hate for one daft mistake to ruin our future. Should I just be honest?

ANON York

No, but don't do it again. You are clearly a weak person, so try character-building exercises like weekends in the Welsh mountains with minimum provisions. Punish yourself then move on.

- If you've got something to ask Danni, just email her at thelesbian@nutsmagazine.co.uk or write to her at the usual address on p58.

ROSIE JONES' GUIDE TO...

Fifty Shades Of Grey

Rosie reveals all about the book that's getting tongues wagging!

“You can get hot under the collar reading it anywhere!”

Fifty Shades

ROSIE JONES

EVERYWHERE YOU go, there’s a young lady reading that book. We are, of course, talking about Fifty Shades Of Grey, the saucy tale that’s turning our nation’s ladies into sex-crazed kittens of kink. Which is something of which we are all in favour!

We haven’t read it ourselves – too many words, not enough pictures – but we’re always keen to know what’s going on when it comes to modern phenomena, especially when they happen to be sexy ones.

So we canvassed our girls to see who the biggest Fifty Shades fan is – and it turns out they all love it. But the most enthusiastic respondent was Rosie Jones – she practically insisted that she be the girl to give us the lowdown on this tale of rudery and kinky sex games. And who are we to refuse her? After all, she’d probably spank us if we did...

Hi Rosie! So, did you enjoy the book?
Yes! There isn’t really anything like this out there for girls. It’s like acceptable lady porn.

What did you like about it?
I liked the fact that all my girl mates had read it and we could all have a naughty chat about it. Also, I can sit on the bus or train and read it because everyone knows about it.

So, have you particularly enjoyed reading it in public?
Yes. You can get hot under the collar reading it anywhere – on the bus, on the beach or at the back of a boring lecture, but as it’s just a book you can’t get in trouble for it.

What are your favourite sexy bits in it?
Ooh! The bit where he writes a sex contract for her to obey! Throughout the first part of the book there’s this simmering build-up and then just as it peaks – and you think they’re going to do it – he writes out this contract. ▶

ROSIE JONES

What's the rudest bit in it?
The bits with the love eggs! Oh, and the vaginal clamps. Though really if men want to know about the rude bits they should read it themselves.

Why does the book get women so excited?
Well, there's the sex! Then nice cars, locations and clothes that us girlies like. Women have a choice of either watching porn or reading Fifty Shades Of Grey – and this is obviously far more acceptable to be seen doing.

Which of the other Nuts girls have read it?
They all have! Holly's read it. India's on to the second book. India has been gushing about it for weeks – I think she's a secret dirt bag. I think she wants to be clamped!

Would you try any of the sexy bits out in the bedroom?
I'd quite like it if a guy texted me a sexy list of things to wear in the bedroom. But I don't like the way Christian [Grey, the lead character] tries to control her in her personal life. If someone told me what to wear to work they'd get a slap!

What can men learn from it?
If you buy your girlfriend the book and she reads it on the way from home she'll be feisty when she gets in. Also, you can see women reading it and know they're secretly horny! If they give you a little wink it might mean she wants you to be her Christian Grey.

Should a guy be like him in the bedroom?
He's very full-on! I'm not sure any girl wants a guy to be that intense or domineering. I think the general rule is a bit of spanking's fine, but it should never leave a mark.

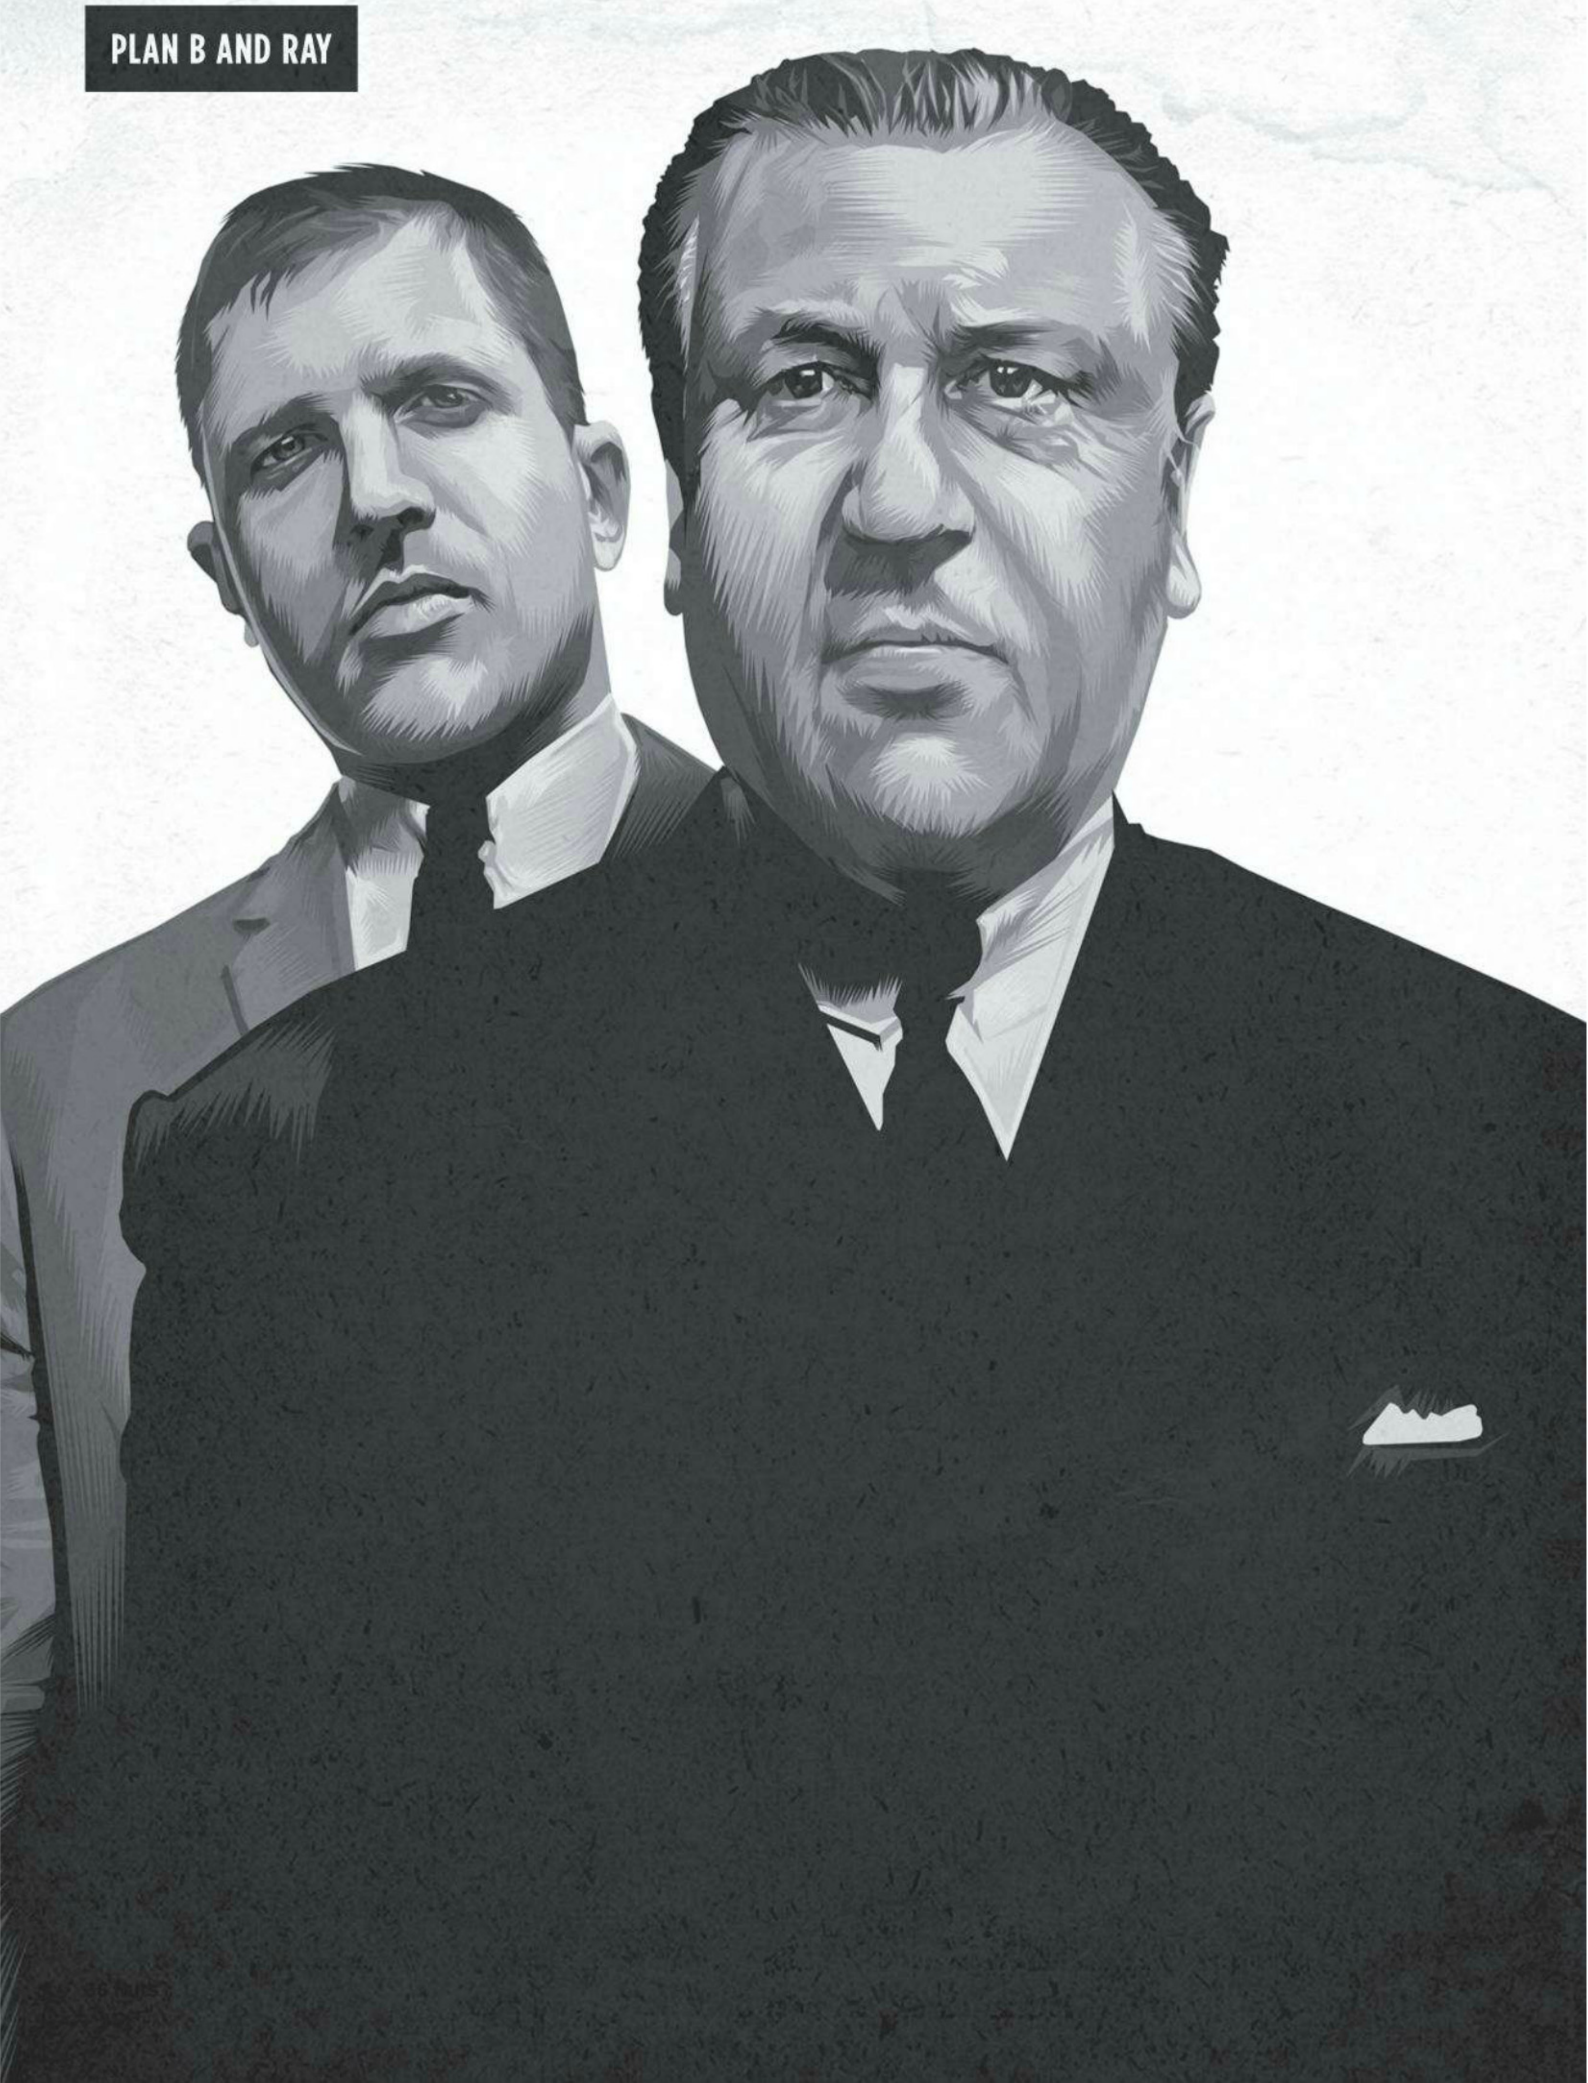
Do you fancy him then?
Yeah, deffo. He's every girl's fantasy – powerful yet vulnerable, has a great car, money, good looks. I wouldn't want him as a boyfriend – I just like the idea.

INTERVIEW: ANDY JONES

"If you buy it for your girlfriend she'll be feisty!"

“You can see women reading it and tell they’re horny!”

PLAN B AND RAY



PLAN B
RAY WINSTONE

The geezer actors on footy, swearing and working together on new Brit cop movie The Sweeney...

Hi guys! What did you learn from working with each other?
RAY: Ben [Drew, Plan B's real name] has his ear close to the ground and knows that world. He plays my partner Carter, a young cop from the estates. Regan, my character, is a dinosaur, a bit like me!
BEN: Ray showed me that just because you're feeling the emotions of a scene it doesn't mean you're doing it right. The director Nick Love showed me a take on the monitor and I was completely overdoing it. The next time, I did the complete opposite, and he was like, "That was amazing!" I learnt so much.

What surprised you most about each other?
RAY: I knew he was a talented lad but he blew me away. He's a gifted actor and a great musician but he's a shy kid. When you break down his barriers he's got a heart as big as Bournemouth.
BEN: He's a hero that didn't let me down. Sometimes you look up to people and when you meet them you're like, "Tosser!" Ray isn't. If I looked up to him before, I look up to him ten times more now.

Off-screen, do you ever go out for a pint together?
RAY: We did a bit at first but I find it a lot harder to get over a proper night out than I used to! These young 'uns can do four nights on the trot and still go to work but it soon catches up. He's been over to mine after a hard day's filming though.
BEN: We have a laugh and hopefully that comes over on screen. I come from a generation of broken families – there's quite a lot of us who don't know our dads and yearn for that father figure. And that's what my Carter sees in Ray's Regan. The same could be said of our relationship in real life.

Ray, you're a Hammer and Ben, you're a Gooner. Who knows more about football?
RAY: I think he's a traitor because he comes from my neck of the woods so he should be claret and blue!
BEN: I should have been West Ham but I didn't have a dad or brother to tell me who to support so it was Ian Wright who got me into football. I've loved Arsenal ever since.

Who swears the most between you two?
RAY: Ben. He's got a proper filthy mouth on him!
BEN: Nah! It's close but he just edges it.

Who could have whom in a fight?
RAY: He'd murder me now but if I was a younger man I'd up him! You should never underestimate an old man. I'm very cunning!
BEN: Ray would have me any day. He'd lose an ear or something but he'd win – he's the Daddy!

"OK, his parking meter's run out – let's book him!"

Tell us a Cockney put-down we might not have heard
RAY: "Leave it out, you fking melt! I'm mugging you off here." I'm an East End boy but Nick Love's actually from South London and they talk in pineapples and coconuts down there. A silly sort of slang, if you know what I mean.
BEN: There are so many words that link to others it's like a fking foreign language. Why is a rattler the name for a chain? Because it rattles.

You both take a kicking in The Sweeney. Did you sustain any injuries during filming?
RAY: I'm forever breaking ribs. There's a scene where I'm being held and punched out by Steven Mackintosh but he caught my lower rib good and proper.
BEN: I got lucky there and managed to not get hurt.

You're both usually on the wrong side of the law on screen. What's it been like playing rozzers for a change?
RAY: My character Regan's on the edge and could just as easily be a villain, but thank God there are people who want to do a job like that. The country would be in a terrible state if we didn't have the old bill. When it all goes pear-shaped, who do we call?
BEN: I wanted my Carter to be fresh. But I know my character wouldn't have gone straight into the flying squad – he had to go on the beat and work his way up. If I was a copper I'd approach a kid I had to search differently and not with all the legalese I experienced growing up.

What was it like having Clarkson and co. interfering during a car chase for Top Gear? Annoying?
RAY: It can get in the way when people turn up on set and start d*cking around. You're thinking, "We've only got six weeks to make this film." But actually it was nice to blow up a caravan!
BEN: We couldn't have done it without them.

Finally, what's best: jellied eels, pie and mash, the full English or a lovely Ruby?
RAY: That's unfair because I love 'em all.
BEN: I don't mind. I'll have what he's having! ✖

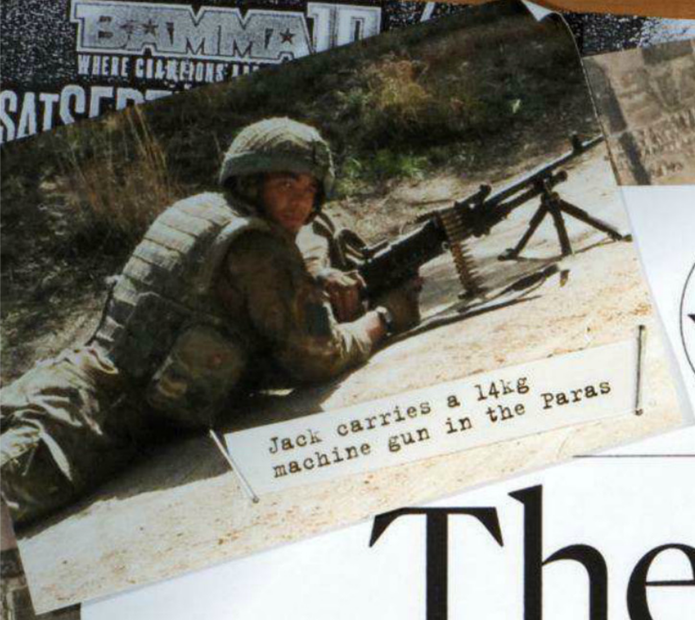
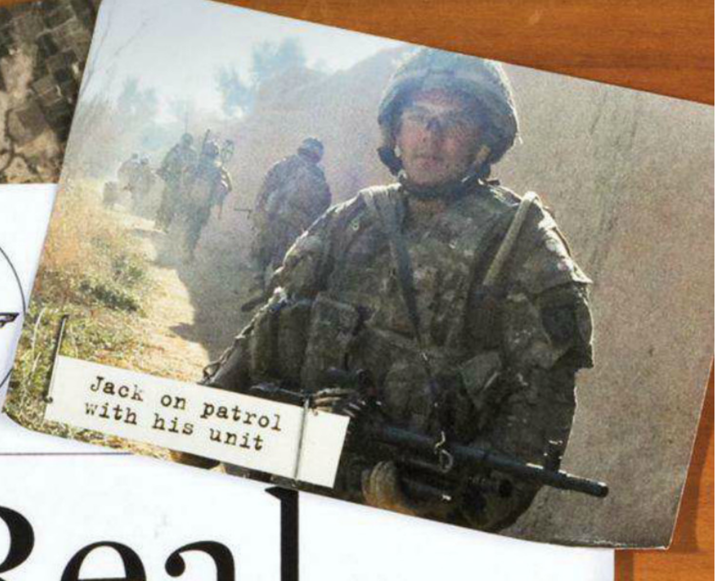
INTERVIEW: DAN BRIGHTMORE ILLUSTRATION: MATTHEW LAZNICKA



Jack carries a 14kg machine gun in the Paras



Jack on patrol with his unit

The Real Life Warrior

Like Tom Hardy in MMA flick Warrior, Jack Marshman has fought on the front line and in the cage!

Hi Jack! You're an MMA fighter, and an active serviceman. Which of the two came first?
I was fighting when I was about 15 on the amateur mixed martial arts circuit in Wales and joined the Army in 2007. Midway through my basic training the army let me go back home to fight for an amateur title, which I won at 17. I turned professional in 2010 and I've never looked back since!

Why did you join up?
I used to get into quite a lot of trouble when I was younger and the military really appealed to me, in particular the Parachute Regiment because they have a massive history and a big reputation for being a well-respected infantry unit.

You've done two tours of Afghanistan. What's the most terrifying situation you've found yourself in over there?
I was in the back of a Mastiff, an armoured patrol vehicle, talking to my mate and having a laugh when we hit a 50kg IED – an Improvised Explosive Device. It blew the wagon up though we escaped with no injuries. The wagon, which is over a tonne in weight, was a write-off. It's just part of the job, isn't it?

You're in the Paras, but is it true you're scared of heights?
Ha-ha, yes! When I joined the Army at 17 I'd never been on a plane. I didn't realise until I was in the back of one that I don't like flying and heights. In truth, it's less the heights, more the flying I don't like.

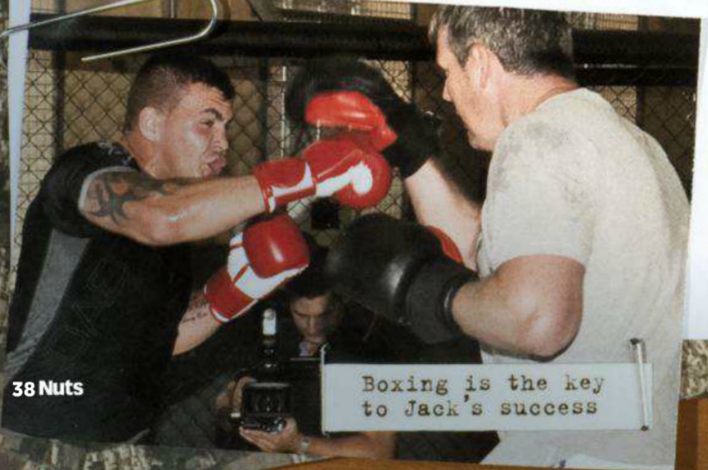
How do you get over that initial fear then?
Peer pressure! When you're sat in the back of a Hercules plane with 20 of your mates, you don't want to be the one who steps out and says, "I ain't doing this."

How does being in a firefight compare with actually being in a cage as a fighter?
I think they're completely different things. When you're in a firefight you work in sections, you're battling against a group of enemies. When you're in the cage it's just man versus man.

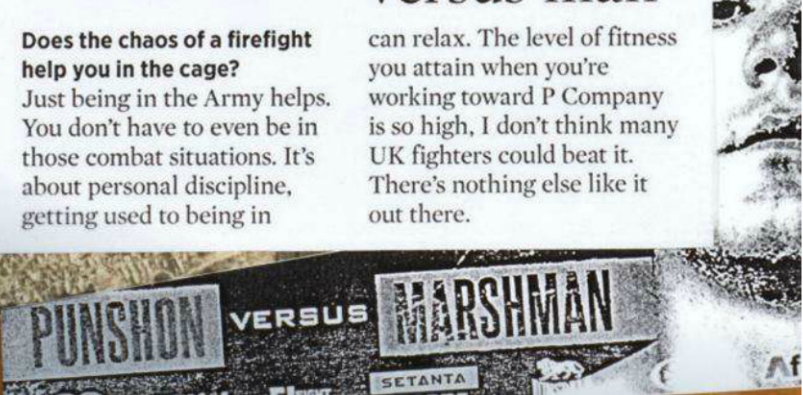
Does the chaos of a firefight help you in the cage?
Just being in the Army helps. You don't have to even be in those combat situations. It's about personal discipline, getting used to being in situations. When you get hit in a fight you just relax, you're a lot more chilled out. If you've never been in a big situation when it's aggressive and you know you might be fighting, you'll tend to panic a bit. Experience really helps.

You've obviously completed the notorious P Company selection process. How does it compare to MMA training?
P Company is actually probably the easiest week in Para training because you get beasted that hard, to get fit enough to pass it, by the time the moment arrives, it's almost a bit of a rest. You just do your event and then you can relax. The level of fitness you attain when you're working toward P Company is so high, I don't think many UK fighters could beat it. There's nothing else like it out there.

> "When I'm in the cage it's just man versus man"



Boxing is the key to Jack's success



What would you say is the toughest thing you've ever had to do in life?
That's a really hard question. I don't really know: trying to balance an Army career with a professional fighting career? But that's ever improving really. My last fight was for a world title. I was 21, competing against a really experienced top-flight guy called Tom Watson, and he was out in America training as a professional. Meanwhile, I was training part time whenever the chance came to get away from my Army work. That was really tough.

In the UFC, former US Marine Brian Stann is in your middleweight class. Would you like to take him on at some point in a Para vs Marine match up? We'd love to see it!
I'm happy to fight anyone at any time! Obviously, I'm a few years behind a guy like Brian. I've got to improve my game and evolve until I reach my potential. But I'm only 22 and I've got plenty of time to get there. By the time I get to the top level I could have had 25-plus fights so I'll have more experience than most guys will ever have.

Are there any techniques that you've learnt while being a Para that you've been able to bring to the cage?
It's got to be boxing. If you look at my record, eight out of ten of my professional wins have come by stoppage using my hands, and that's all down to my skill with my fists.

Do you ever get sick of fighting? Are you sure you actually enjoy it that much?
I think I'm too young to have got sick of it by now! I love it when I finish one fight and then I get a phone call a week later saying, "Right you've got a fight in eight weeks time, and you've got to get back into training." I love that aspect of what I do – it's what I live for.

When it comes to the crunch, what do you enjoy more: being a soldier or a cage fighter?
It's hard to say because I've not done one without the other. I enjoy being in the Army, especially in the Paras, but I also want to make a career out of fighting full time. One has got to give, you can't keep both up forever. We'll see! ✖

Jack's five top pre-fight tips

DIET: "If you've got to lose lumber for a fight to make weight, you want to bring it down gradually, rather than at the last minute because it usually plays a factor in the fight."

TRAINING STRUCTURE: "You want strength and conditioning, and you want technical work, but you need heavy sparring too."

FRAME OF MIND: "Stay relaxed and concentrate on the end goal – winning!"

TRAINING MASK: "This is basically a gas mask which forces you to train with less oxygen coming in than normal. This makes your body work harder, and thus gets you fitter."

ENJOY IT: "When you get to a level where you're fighting for money or fighting for whatever, if you lose your enjoyment you aren't going to want to be in there."

Kim Kardashian

In or out of a swimsuit, Kim is first choice in our reality TV dream team!

"I love my booty and I'm proud of my body!"

LOVE IT or loathe it, reality TV has given the world some seriously sexy stars, and they don't come much bigger or sexier than Kim Kardashian. Hollywood got its knickers in a twist in 2007 when she cropped up in a saucy leaked home sex tape but since then she's gone on to star in two of her own TV shows and make bazillions of dollars in sponsorship deals. So, without further ado, let us present the marvellous Ms K...

Hi Kim! Do you like the UK?
Oh it's so much fun! I just love it here, it's different than the USA – a different energy.

Do you get annoyed people talk about your backside a lot?
No, of course not! I love my booty. Everyone with a little junk in the trunk should be proud of their body. I am!

You seem to go out a lot. Are you a big party girl?
I'm allergic to alcohol, so that image isn't accurate. But when I host a party, I really work it. I don't just sit up in the VIP room ignoring everybody. I want to connect with people. I want to dance!

What about being groped by people in the crowd?
I bring my sister Khloe! She takes care of that. Ha-ha!

You always seem to be in great shape. Do you work out a lot?
All the time. You have to stay focused and committed to it. I love the challenge of hating it, if that makes sense.

A while back you did a very saucy shoot for Playboy. Why?
It was just the craziest thing ever. I was so nervous to do it. After meeting with Hugh Hefner he just told me that Marilyn Monroe was on the first cover and that made me feel so much better for some reason. And I'm so glad I did it. It was easily the greatest experience I've ever had. ►

KIM KARDASHIAN

Do you have any regrets about your infamous sex tape?
No. I'm a stronger person because of everything bad that's happened to me. I was devastated but in life you're measured not by the mistakes you make but by how you overcome them. He was my boyfriend at the time, it was nothing scandalous.

Which other women do you look up to?
My role models growing up were the actress Salma Hayek and J-Lo. I've always wanted to feel proud of my shape.

So does having a curvy figure make you feel sexier?
I think feeling sexy is a state of mind, but it's nice having a few curves just the same!

Talking of showing off curves: when the sun's out, are you a bikini girl or a one-piece girl?
Oh, definitely bikini. I thought that one-pieces would hide a few things that I wanted to hide, but then I realised that I don't want to hide them!

You're ridiculously famous but do you ever Google yourself?
Ha-ha! I was actually the most Googled person in 2008 and my sisters Khloe and Kourtney joked that it was because of me. I Google myself too much.

You're a very successful woman – does that mean you're bossy?
No, not at all! Sometimes my sisters might think so but I'm pretty cool when it comes to giving advice. You get ahead in this life by working hard, being persistent and having a good plan.

You have your own perfume but what should a man smell like?
I like a man to smell... manly! Hard to explain, I know.

Finally, is true that you're a big Cheryl Cole fan?
I think she's so beautiful. I saw her at the gym once with no make-up on and she was just as gorgeous, if not more, looking natural. ▶

Reading vs Spurs

SKY SPORTS 1/HD • 3.30pm

We're off to the Madejski Stadium, where Andre Villas-Boas will be hoping that Spurs' shaky start to the season starts to solidify as they face a spirited but limited Reading side. That said, the Royals gave Chelsea a hell of a scare on home soil, so who's to say that they can't do even better against the North Londoners?

Big Fat Quiz Of The 80s

CHANNEL 4/HD • 9pm

There have been so many nostalgia TV programmes in recent times that they'll soon be able to make nostalgia TV programmes about nostalgia TV programmes. But at least this one has Jonathan Ross, Jason Manford and Mickey Flanagan on it.

Strike Back: Vengeance

SKY 1/HD • 9pm

The third series continues with Stonebridge reassigned to Section 20. An encounter with a mirror has alarm bells ringing about his state of mind though, and it's not improved when he and Scott head to Niger… and straight into a US missile strike.

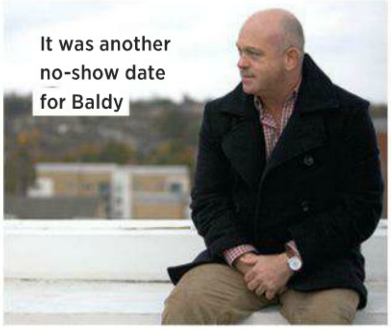
Everton vs Newcastle Utd

SKY SPORTS 1/HD • 7pm

We're only a month in, but already these two have displayed the familiar hallmarks of being tricky customers. Everton have fared a little better than Newcastle so far, and do have home advantage. Home win then? Probably. Only just though.

★★★



It was another no-show date for Baldy

Ross Kemp: Extreme World

SKY 1/HD • 9pm

When we think of poverty, we often think of third world countries, but the recession has brought the reality of living off a pittance into sharper focus at home. Ross travels to Glasgow to speak to some of the people most affected.

NEW SERIES!

"Yep, you'll need root canal work there, sir"

True Blood

FX/HD • 10pm

Welcome back, True Blood! We've missed your fangs, blood and boobs. The new series kicks off with a regular cast member dying and returning as a vamp – albeit a hugely narked one. A woman visits Eric from his past. It's his "sister" (they had the same vampire maker), who he then has sex with. And Jason fends off a gay vamp.

Real Madrid vs Man City

ITV1/HD • 7.30pm

Well, this one should be interesting, with the home team being the most successful club in European football and their visitors being one of the few teams in the world with the financial clout to compete with them. And the English champions. Quite tasty.

★★★★★

This time, he'd walk Robot Wars

Derren Brown: Svengali

CHANNEL 4/HD • 9pm

With the emergence of Dynamo, it's easy to forget that Derren's still been doing his stage shows. And here's the latest – demonstrating more of the drama, suspense and mind-control we've grown to know, love and be freaked out by over the years.

ABBEY GROVE SCHOOL ELECTION
The Britain's Got Talent entrants weren't up to much

Bad Education

BBC THREE • 10pm

Last in the series of the impressive Jack Whitehall comedy. In this one, there's a school election on with each class nominating a candidate. Naturally, Alfie's (Whitehall) class of degenerates provides slim pickings. And head teacher Fraser (Mathew Horne) has been suspended for watching naughty internet stuff.

NEW SERIES!

Meet The Parents

E4 • 9pm

Alex Zane returns with the hidden camera reality game show in which chaps are duped into meeting their girlfriend's insane families (played by actors). This week's show involves a poor bloke having to compete with a super-competitive dad, a mental mum and a brother who's a secret porn star. We've all been there!

Anger Management

COMEDY CENTRAL/HD • 9pm

The new Charlie Sheen comedy is a little light on laughs, but we're giving it another go, as it's been handed a massive 90-episode run! Charlie asks his therapy group to go without sleep for 36 hours to allow their inhibitions to come out. It doesn't work out.

The Hangover Part II

SKY MOVIES PREMIERE/HD • 8pm

It's been two years since the original Hangover chaps "enjoyed" their stag weekend in Vegas, and now this time they're in Thailand. Sadly, this remake never hits the heights of the first, but it's spiced up by a missing person storyline and an amusing monkey.
★★★★

Spurs vs Lazio

ITV4 • 8.05pm

After so cruelly missing out on Champions League qualification at the end of last season, one club that can feel entitled to be a little miffed at Thursday night Europa League commitments is Spurs. Still, the visit of Italian giants Lazio makes for an attractive-looking fixture if AVB's men can get themselves up for it.

Racy revelations from our female readers!

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'They invited me to join in'

I RECENTLY moved into a flat where there's a laundry room on the ground floor. One night, I heard noises coming from inside, so I opened the door to find two girls at it! They invited me in and told me to lock the door. I took my top off and one of them began to suck on my breasts as the other kissed me. My skirt was soon off and the girl who was sucking my breasts pushed her fingers inside me, while I performed oral sex on the other. It was amazing! Soon the three of us were coming hard – and very loudly. When we finished, we set the date for another session, so watch this space!

Chloe London

'I slipped my pants aside'

MY BOYFRIEND and I have just come back from a holiday in Tenerife. One day by the pool, we were both feeling a little horny and decided to have some saucy fun in the water. We jumped in and he began to fondle my boobs. We swam under a bridge in the shaded area of the pool and I sat on his lap, straddling him. He took my hand and placed it in his shorts – he was rock hard and ready to go. I slipped my bikini bottoms to one side and let him slide inside me – what a glorious feeling! He pushed me against the wall and I felt his whole length deep inside me, though we had to stay quiet as there were people around. As he came, I felt his hands tighten on my buttocks and he buried his head into my neck to avoid making a sound. Our frisky pool adventure is one thing I keep thinking about daily and I'd love to do it again!

'The boss saw us groping'

I'VE BEEN working in a bar to get some extra money over the summer and there's been real chemistry between the cocktail guy and me. We would always flirt and touch each other whenever we could. Eventually, we had a snog one night and after that would nip out the back for a quick kiss and some dirty talk. The bar had a promotional night on last week and, having had too much to drink, we weren't very subtle. We had a snog in the cellar and later, an X-rated grope under a table which left me buzzing all night. We thought we'd had a great night until Monday, when we got the sack. Turns out the boss had seen everything – I just wished she'd joined in, she's so hot!

'I gave him medication'

LAST MONTH, following an operation, my boyfriend was in hospital for a few weeks. He was starting to feel desperate for some action, so I promised him a treat on my next visit. As soon as I arrived, his eyes lit up and when I told him I wasn't wearing any underwear, he almost discharged himself there and then! Anyway, after almost half an hour of naughty talk I eased myself onto him. He was as hard as hell and the kinky talk had me soaking wet too. I gently rocked back and forth, taking care not to hurt him or make too much noise. He came silently and I climbed off, giggling at what we'd just got away with. His parents arrived soon after and were pleased to see their "poorly son" looking so well!

Fergie's finest rants!

We pay tribute to some of Sir Alex's angriest moments!

MANCHESTER UNITED'S recent last-gasp win at Southampton was boss Sir Alex Ferguson's 1,000th league game in charge. So we thought we'd celebrate this by recalling some of his funniest moments of pre and post-match jollity! And not an Arsene Wenger diss in sight.

On referee Alan Wiley, 2009

"You see referees abroad who are as fit as butchers' dogs. We have some who are fit. He wasn't fit. He was taking 30 seconds to book a player. He was needing a rest. Ridiculous."

On Rafa Benitez, 2009

"I have never said a word about him. The only time I responded was when he made [a hand] gesture with Sam Allardyce. There was no doubt he was doing that... that was b*llocks. Absolute b*llocks."

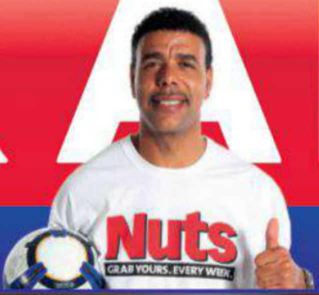
KAMMY!



He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

His one-handed press-up technique needed work

Ron's not sad – and we're not daft!

Credit supporters with some intelligence, Cristiano!

I'M REALLY disappointed that Cristiano Ronaldo has said he's "sad" at Real Madrid. He's claiming it has nothing to do with the club, that it's personal reasons, but it can only be financial considerations that are making him say this, nothing else.

Jose Mourinho has provided him with his first La Liga title after a while in the shadow of Lionel Messi and Barcelona. He went to the Euros and performed really well with Portugal and Jose was there again, supporting him. And now he's "sad" at Real Madrid and it's that old classic, "personal reasons".

B*llocks! It's money! Football supporters aren't stupid. How much money do these people really need before they can say they're "happy"? And there's more or less nowhere Ronaldo can go apart from Manchester City, unless he vanishes to China where, as Didier Drogba has just found out, you can go there chasing the money and not necessarily be given it!

It's so sad – ironically – for the average fan. We all know it's a comparatively short career for these fellas, but Cristiano, at least be honest about it. You're the second-best player in the world. Just tell Real how much to pay you to keep you there and credit us all with a bit of intelligence.

"I still can't roll my tongue!"

Don't write Michael off!

I'M GLAD to see Michael Owen getting himself a club. He took his time, obviously wondering whether anyone would come along to compete for his services, but plumped for Stoke. I think they're the best club for him, because if Tony Pulis can't get him fit, nobody can.

Michael has been a bit unfortunate in recent years – OK, he got picked up by Man United, but he always had the likes of Berbatov and Welbeck ahead of him. Now there's no hiding place – he has to get fit, start scoring and keep his place. And I think he'll do it. You don't lose the knack for sticking the ball in the back of the net. Him and Crouchy up front? I can think of worse forward lines than that!

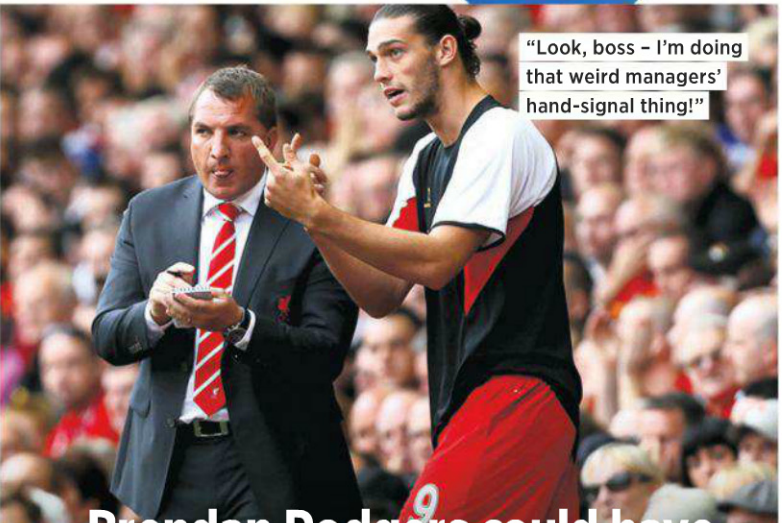
KAMMY'S UNBELIEVABLE-OMETER™

UNBELIEVABLY GOOD!

FERGIE'S FEAT!
Sir Alex Ferguson reaching 1,000 league games. The man is quite simply the daddy – nobody comes close. He's a constant source of amazement.

UNBELIEVABLY BAD!

BITTER BERB!
Dimitar Berbatov choosing now to have a pop at Fergie. If Dimitar ever becomes a manager, he'll understand why managers do certain things.



"Look, boss – I'm doing that weird managers' hand-signal thing!"

Brendan Rodgers could have signed Michael Owen!

THERE WAS a lot of speculation as to whether Brendan Rodgers should have jumped in and signed Michael Owen. It's obvious, isn't it? Liverpool didn't get any of their targets before the transfer deadline and got rid of Andy Carroll. One goal from Michael would have won over the fans, and it wouldn't have been the worst decision Brendan ever made.

Brendan's problem is similar to that experienced by Andre Villas-Boas when he went to Chelsea – he went there with a pre-conceived idea of who he did and didn't want at the club. It's the worst thing you can do, and I say that having done it myself at Stoke City. I think Brendan went in with the pre-conceived notion that Andy Carroll is not his type of player, but in my experience you should always have a look at what the player can do for you. Now Brendan's been left without Carroll and without anybody who might have replaced him and played in the way he wanted.

THE BIG MATCH!

"Carlos, Edin's about to punch you"

Real Madrid vs Man City

18 SEPTEMBER • ITV1/HD, 7.45pm

This will be about Man City establishing a benchmark for how far they've come. City's main problem will be getting over the scale of the experience in time for the next league game. I think they'll rise to the occasion.
PREDICTION: 1-1

Key man

Joe Hart's going to have to be the main man. He'll have to repel a lot of ammunition and he'll need to be on top form.

"ASK KAMMY!"

"Who has been your favourite guest on Goals On Sunday?"
ROSS via Twitter
KAMMY SAYS: Peter Reid. He'll always be my favourite guest because he loves having a laugh, he's very sharp and really quick-witted. He recognises that the show is meant to be just about lads down the pub on a Sunday talking about the football from the day before. It's meant to be perfect hangover TV and Peter completely grasps that.

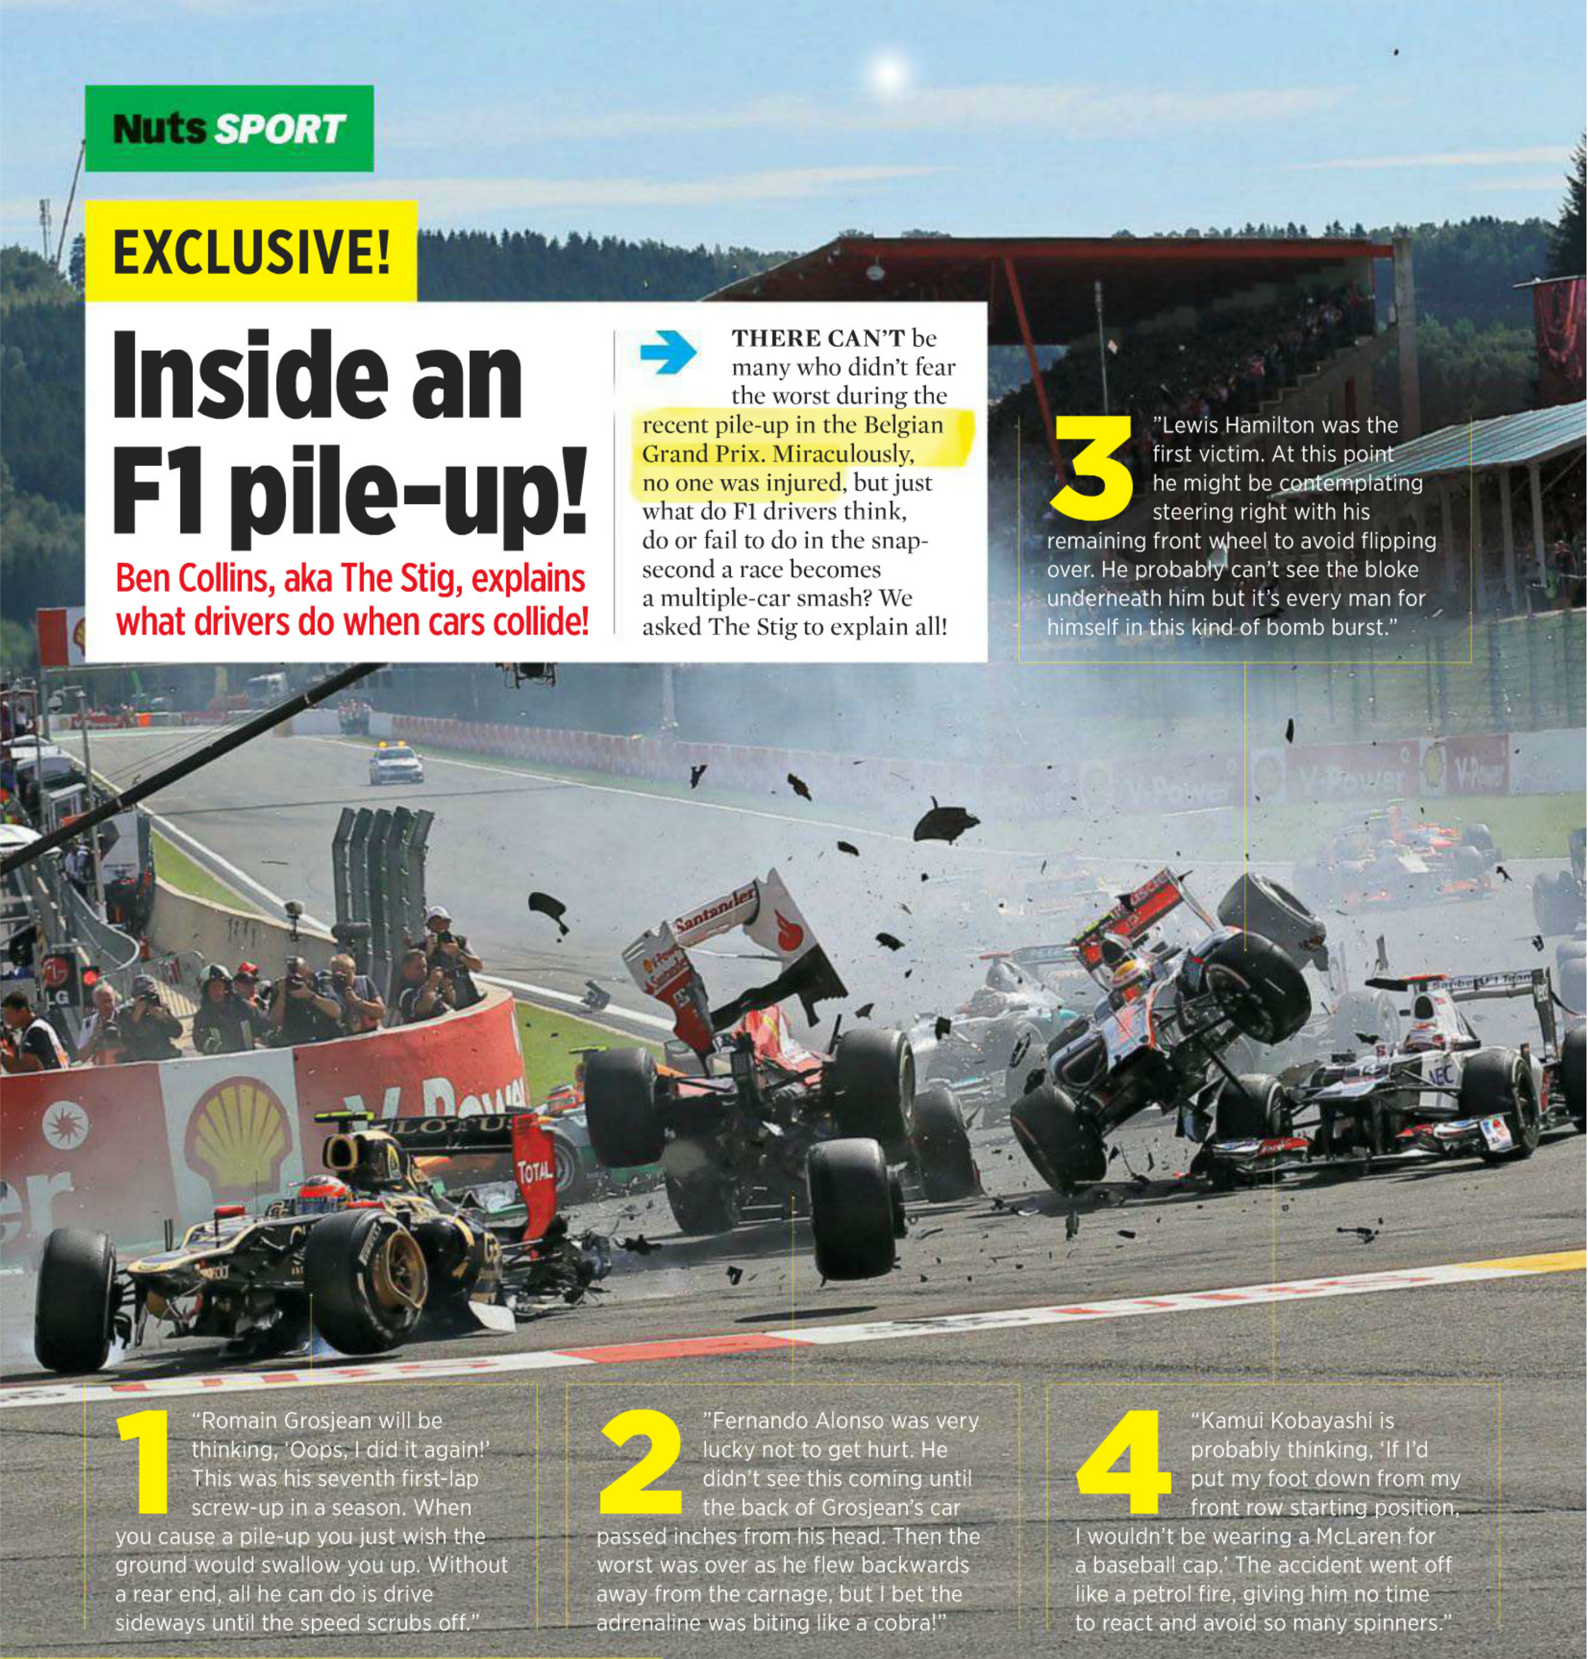
"How many decades ago were you a footballer? Five or six?"
SAM JERMY Sunderland
KAMMY SAYS: Ha-ha! I ceased to be a footballer in the 1995-96 season when I was player-manager at Bradford City and I only stopped because the chairman made the suggestion that I give up playing in order to concentrate on management. But I turned out for Welshpool Town twice this year after Jeff Stelling took the p*ss out of them. So there!

EXCLUSIVE!

Inside an F1 pile-up!

Ben Collins, aka The Stig, explains what drivers do when cars collide!

THERE CAN'T be many who didn't fear the worst during the recent pile-up in the Belgian Grand Prix. Miraculously, no one was injured, but just what do F1 drivers think, do or fail to do in the snap-second a race becomes a multiple-car smash? We asked The Stig to explain all!



1 "Romain Grosjean will be thinking, 'Oops, I did it again!' This was his seventh first-lap screw-up in a season. When you cause a pile-up you just wish the ground would swallow you up. Without a rear end, all he can do is drive sideways until the speed scrubs off."

2 "Fernando Alonso was very lucky not to get hurt. He didn't see this coming until the back of Grosjean's car passed inches from his head. Then the worst was over as he flew backwards away from the carnage, but I bet the adrenaline was biting like a cobra!"

3 "Lewis Hamilton was the first victim. At this point he might be contemplating steering right with his remaining front wheel to avoid flipping over. He probably can't see the bloke underneath him but it's every man for himself in this kind of bomb burst."

4 "Kamui Kobayashi is probably thinking, 'If I'd put my foot down from my front row starting position, I wouldn't be wearing a McLaren for a baseball cap.' The accident went off like a petrol fire, giving him no time to react and avoid so many spinners."

"Helmet? Check! OK, let's roller-skate!"

ABOUT THE EXPERT

Racing driver Ben famously unmasked himself as Top Gear's The Stig in his 2010 autobiography.

"They really ought to put a roundabout here"

5 "Felipe Massa in the pursuing Ferrari is just far enough back to be planning an evasive route through the melée. The rest of the pack will be filling their boots by overtaking all the crashed front-runners, dodging the broken carbon to avoid punctures."

Ben on crashes

"Risk-taking is at the heart of motor sport. You try to visualise as many scenarios as possible so your decisions are clear-headed, but the first corner throws up so many variables that you rely on instinct. If you lose the belief you can mitigate an accident a race track becomes a scary place to be."

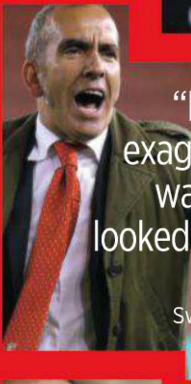
"Quote me on that!"

This week's biggest match debaters!

"Only one person gets you the sack, and that's the fans"
That'll be more than one person then, Paul Merson.

"Two wins and a draw. He couldn't wish for a better start"
How about three wins, Harry Redknapp?

"Sir Alex Ferguson picks the toilet paper at United"
Jamie Redknapp reveals the Man United boss is hands-on.



"I don't want to exaggerate but the way we played it looked like Stoke City vs Barcelona"
Swindon boss Paolo Di Canio exaggerates.

"Normally, Van Persie's first touch is his touch"
That's how first touches generally work, Lee Dixon.

"I don't have a dog. That's why I feel sorry for the wife"
Steve Clarke prepares to take his missus for walkies again.

QUOTES COMPILED BY: GRAHAM WRAY PHOTOS: ACTION IMAGES, OCTANEPHOTOS.CO.UK, EYEVINE

OO-ER SOUNDS A BIT RUDE CORNER!

"Andy Carroll pulled himself off onto the far post"
Alan Shearer on West Ham's shameless loan striker.

"I didn't want to squeeze the inside of Jenson"
Sebastian Vettel resists his urges.

"Mark Hughes is going to lie down and take it"
Mick McCarthy predicts a particularly painful ride for Sparky.
